Eagle Commission

Reflections on current events: The recent events in Afghanistan take me to many places. As a retired soldier and chaplain, my emotions and thoughts have run the gamut of pain, disappointment, and sadness. While I held no illusion that Afghanistan would ever become a modern democracy and a united country, there is sadness in watching what is unfolding there, fully expecting that the Taliban leadership will enforce their brutal world view on that nation and its citizens. It was due to our military, my brothers and sisters in arms who served, sacrificed and died there that there was a sense of hope for many Afghan citizens. For many of them, there's also a sense of pride in trying to "do good" for individuals and for shared camaraderie of us. I also have a heavy heart for the small number of Christ followers in that land and pray God's strength and protection on that church. Our mission as the Eagle Commission is to "take the gospel of peace to our nation's warriors." That mission remains regardless of world events. I know of no expiration date on the Great Commission.

On Mission,

Chaplin Mark Penfold, DMin.
