Unconditional love

1 Cor. 13:1-8

God's love for us is unconditional. What that means is that He loves us no matter what, and He doesn't expect anything in return. It doesn't matter what we've done, what we've been through, or who we are; He won't love us any less. His love is perfect, unending, and doesn't expect anything.

Living an others-first kind of life requires loving people without expecting anything in return.

It can be so easy to get caught up in only putting others first if we get something out of it—if they're nice to us or treat us right.

The hard thing to do is to help people, be there for them, and love them when you know you won't get anything from it or even when they aren't the nicest to you.

Pray that you will learn to love people and help people without expecting anything because that, after all, is unconditional love.
